

D & I RESOURCES

Nat Jackson and Lauren Bull would like to share education with you.

Books:

- 'Noughts and Crosses' by Malorie Blackman - A dystopian society that explores the contrast between class.
- 'So You Want to Talk About Race' by Ijeoma Oluo - Helpful guide to crucial conversations that need to happen.
- 'Why I'm No Longer Talking to People about Race' by Renni Eddo-Lodge - Shines light on many different issues still prevalent in modern day society such as white-washed feminism, class and race.
- 'To Kill A Mockingbird by Harper Lee' - Explores themes such as racism, gender and prejudice in 1930s Alabama. It is important to acknowledge that these issues are not as distant as we may think; people still experience prejudice in 21st century England.
- 'White fragility: Why it's so hard for white people to talk about racism' by Robin Di Angelo - explores potent reactions to racial inequality and the psychology behind them.
- 'Wonder' by R J Palacio.
- 'Me before you' by Jojo Moves.
- 'Disability visibility' by Alice Wong.
- 'Laughing at my nightmare' by Justin Sheppard.
- 'Far from the tree' by Andrew Solomon.
- 'The running dream' by Wendelin Van Draaren.
- 'Not if I see you first' by Eric Lindstorm.
- 'The pretty one' by Keah Brown.

Films:

- Hidden Figures – Follows three African-American women in the race to launch into orbit. They have a pivotal role in creating the cutting-edge technology while racing against not only other countries but their male counterparts.
- The Hate U Give - an African-American girl grapples with identity and morality after witnessing her best friend's murder at the hand of the police.
- Dear White People - a culture war erupts on a predominantly white university campus after an offensive party is staged.
- Malcom X - a tribute to the life of a racial activist and explores the legacy of pride passed on through generations after his assassination.

UK charities:

- Royal National Institute for the Blind (RNIB) - aims to support people who are blind and visually impaired.
- Action for Kids – aims to help children with physical and learning disabilities to gain independence.
- Disability rights UK – the leading charity of its kind which aims to support the rights of the physically and mentally disabled.
