Scholarships: Nurturing talent

Hurst is not an elitist school. We are proud of the diversity of our pupil body, and we believe that we should celebrate the successes of every pupil who has achieved their personal best. Having said that, we are fortunate to have many young people whose innate talent and intrinsic motivation to work hard means that they are elite performers at the highest level of their chosen field, whether that be academic excellence, sporting prowess or creative brilliance.

We have therefore devised a scholarship programme to ensure that our most gifted pupils are recognised, rewarded, and enriched throughout their time at Hurst. This booklet aims to set out the attributes that we are looking for, the process through which these star performers are identified, and the pathways that we offer our award holders in order to help them not only achieve their personal best, but also to enable them to help others to do the same.

The starting point, of course, is nurturing our scholars' outstanding natural talent and ability. Our Academic Scholars should rightly be aiming for Oxbridge and the most prestigious international universities; many of our Sports Scholars go on to develop successful professional careers having won national titles and represented county and country whilst at Hurst; our Performing Arts

Scholars routinely astonish their audiences whether on stage in Hurst's stunning New Bury Theatre or in the West End. The Pathways that each of them follow in their chosen discipline are specifically designed to help them achieve their goals, with unique opportunities and individual mentoring to tailor their individual programme.

Being an award holder at Hurst is not just about individual excellence. It is also about the positive impact that these elite performers can have on those around them. We are looking for leaders, who will inspire others to push themselves to greater heights; and we expect our scholars to be role models, who will shape the culture of the whole cast, the whole team, the whole class. At Hurst, it is about attitude: making the very most of the talents and abilities that our pupils have been blessed with, and putting those gifts to good use within the school community.

At Hurst, we seek to do things the right way. There are no short cuts to success, and we build and nurture our own talent with integrity and a commitment to every single pupil's individual journey. Being a scholar at Hurst is not just a title. It is a way of life.

Dominic Mott
Head of College

Academic Scholarships

Academic Scholarships recognise raw academic ability, with academic scholars excelling across the curriculum. Beyond achieving outstanding results, scholars will demonstrate a love of learning combined with an intellectual curiosity that naturally drives them well beyond the standard curriculum. For Academic Scholars, exploring new and challenging concepts is a pleasure.

The Academic Scholar's journey throughout the College is designed to be highly enriching and importantly, enjoyable. Ultimately, those on the academic scholarship programme will be prepared for applications to the most prestigious universities within and beyond the UK.

Academic Assessment Process

At this entry point, pupils do not apply for an Academic Scholarship. 11+ Academic Scholarships are awarded on the strength of the entrance exams, admissions interview and conduct during the assessment process.

Current pupils at Hurst are awarded Academic Scholarships based on their end of Year 6 (for 11+) and Year 8 (for 13+) exam results.

Key Dates

Assessment date:
Saturday 23 November 2024

Candidates sit Maths, English and Science papers set by Hurst based on the ISEB Common Academic Scholarship curriculum. Specimen papers are sent to Prep Schools in the autumn term and available to parents on request.

For further information on the curriculum please see the pages on CASE (Common Academic Scholarship Exams) on the ISEB website: iseb.co.uk/assessments/common-entrance/for-families

In addition, candidates will sit verbal and non verbal reasoning tests and have interviews with the Head of College and other key members of the Senior School

Management Team.

Academic Expectations and Pathway Programme

Expectations

Receiving an award carries a level of prestige, but also a degree of expectation and responsibility. Academic scholars are expected to contribute to the intellectual life of the school and to perform at an academic level that is commensurate with their ability. They are expected to set an example to other pupils in their conduct and approach to all aspects of academic life and have a strong work ethic.

Pathway Programme

Academic Scholars who join the programme in Year 7 are automatically enrolled into the prestigious Johnnians Society, joining the most academically minded pupils across the College. In addition, they will join at least one of the many academic societies on offer, which contain like-minded scholars from both the Senior Prep and Middle Schools. These present a wealth of opportunities to explore areas of interest, as well as allowing scholars to develop leadership skills amongst their peers.

Scholars are given the opportunity to become a pupil ambassador for one of our faculties, helping to shape the culture that pupils across the College experience within that particular area. They also take part in a wide variety of specialist events, masterclasses and competitions, whilst helping to promote these to the wider pupil body.

Those who join the academic scholarship programme in Middle School are automatically enrolled in the Johnnian Society. Those new to the program can opt to become an ambassador for a chosen faculty, while those remaining on the Scholarship program from the Senior Prep School can choose to remain as ambassadors for their current faculty or chose to move to another. Scholars in middle school take the lead in academic societies, shaping the experience for all involved, whilst continuing to instil a culture of intellectual curiosity across the College.

In Middle School, academic scholars join a specialist Highly Selective University track, designed to prepare pupils for future applications to universities such as Cambridge or Oxford. They will benefit from a broad range of specialist teaching stretching far beyond the standard curriculum, which will start to individualise as they progress through the middle school. Scholars will also benefit from a wealth of super-curricular opportunities and competitions that ensure applications to top universities are as strong as possible.

As scholars progress through the middle school, they take increased ownership of their own super-curricular studies and are encouraged to explore what is on offer beyond the confines of the College, and indeed beyond term time. A broad menu of options will be provided to scholars so that they can continue to pursue their interests all year round, helping to instil a greater sense of academic curiosity, as well as the resilience and independence required to succeed at the very top universities.

Towards the end of each term, the Johnnians society from right across the College come together for the Scholars dinner, which is followed by a lecture from a guest speaker.

For those joining the academic scholarship program in the Sixth Form, will automatically be enrolled into the Johnnian Society. They will take the lead on many super-curricular opportunities across the College and are strongly encouraged to partake in local and national competitions in their specialist areas.

In Sixth Form, academic scholars continue upon the specialist Highly Selective University track, benefitting from specialist teaching stretching far beyond the curriculum, as well as individualised mentoring in preparation for their application to universities such as Cambridge and Oxford. Scholars choosing to apply to a Highly Selective University will receive additional input from the Futures team throughout Sixth Form, ensuring that their application is as strong as possible.

As lead ambassadors for their chosen Faculty area, they gain valuable student leadership opportunities as a liaison between the pupil body and the faculties, as well as being eligible to oversee academic societies for Scholars in the Middle and Senior Prep schools.

Scholars in the Sixth Form play a leading role in inviting guest speakers for the termly scholars' lecture evening, whilst setting the standard and culture for academic scholars across the College.

Annual Review

Academic scholars are required to attend an annual review meeting with either the Deputy Head (Academic) or Head of College.

Performing Arts Scholarships

Co-curricular activity is a very important part of what we do here at Hurst, and the skills cultivated in these areas are extremely beneficial to young people across every aspect of their school career. As such, we seek to encourage and support those for whom this is a core focus in their lives, both enabling them to succeed in their chosen disciplines at the highest level, allowing them to feel valued, and to bring their skills and experiences to others as leaders and role models within the school community. As such, there is a dedicated pathway of opportunities for Scholars in Co-curricular areas, to promote these aims.

Performing Arts scholars can apply on the basis of being a specialist in one particular area, operating at an exceptionally high standard, or can apply on the basis of being strong in two, or even three of the disciplines (Dance, Drama and Music). Candidates should specify at the time of applying, which route they intend to take. At 11+, candidates will be assessed in each area they put forward separately, whereas at 13+ and 16+, the individual components will be assessed via the means of a panel audition, in front of the Directors of Music, Drama and Dance, regardless of which route a candidate is using. A candidate is welcome to offer one, two, or three disciplines for this panel, dependent upon their individual strengths.

Performing Arts: Dance Pathway

Pupils must show a passion for dance and a dedication and commitment to the subject as a performer, creator and spectator. Dance scholarships will be offered to candidates who demonstrate a high level of technical competence and who are able to access a range of dance styles and therefore examinations in ballet and modern dance following RAD or ISTD, while beneficial, are not essential.

Performing Arts: Dance Criteria

Performing Arts candidates for dance will be expected to demonstrate a high degree of physical aptitude and versatility relative to their age in a as well as evidence engagement in the creative process. There is no expectation that a candidate will be following a graded qualification.

References from candidates' dance teachers outside of school are required and should be submitted with the application by email to admissions@hppc.co.uk

Performing Arts: Drama Pathway

We reward pupils who show promise, potential and passion for the dramatic arts and who can demonstrate their commitment by having participated in performances at their school or in extra-curricular drama activities.

Performing Arts: Drama Criteria

Performing Arts candidates will be expected to demonstrate and evidence active participation in their chosen discipline as well as being experienced performers.

Expectations are that candidates will be following a graded qualification pathway (e.g. LAMDA) and have likely achieved at least the first three qualifications. If a candidate is not following a graded qualification pathway, they should be able to operate at an equivalent level in at least one discipline.

Candidates are expected to demonstrate and evidence active participation in drama by participating in school plays or extra curricular drama activities. Any participation in an examination programme such as LAMDA, New Era or Trinity Guildhall would also be regarded as evidence of commitment to drama, as will evidence of experience of live theatre as an audience member.

References from candidates' drama teachers outside of school are required and should be submitted with the application by email to admissions@hppc.co.uk

Candidates are expected to demonstrate and evidence active participation in drama. Candidates will show an enthusiasm and sustained commitment to the subject for at least two years, such as by studying drama at GCSE level, participating in performances at school or extra curricular drama activities, taking LAMDA or other awards in acting. It is not essential that candidates have studied Drama at GCSE, but a high predicted grade would be expected if they have.

References from candidates' drama teachers outside of school are required and should be submitted with the application by email to admissions@hppc.co.uk

Performing Arts: Music Pathway

Scholarships are offered to pupils who show considerable musical promise. Candidates must show a high degree of musical ability and demonstrate potential for leadership in the encouragement of non-award holding musicians.

Performing Arts: Music Criteria

11+

Performing Arts candidates will be expected to demonstrate and evidence active participation in their chosen discipline as well as being experienced performers. Expectations are that candidates will be following a graded qualification pathway and have likely achieved at least the first three qualifications.

If a candidate is not following a graded qualification pathway, they should be able to operate at an equivalent level in at least one discipline.

Musicians are expected to be of at least Grade 4 standard and will likely, though not always, offer more than one instrument, or one instrument and voice to an excellent standard.

References from candidates' music teachers outside of school are required and should be submitted with the application by email to admissions@hppc.co.uk

Candidates are expected to demonstrate and evidence active participation in music. Candidates will be assessed on potential as well as achievement, but as a guideline they should be Grade 5 or above on at least one instrument. A second instrument (including voice) would be an advantage but not essential. An accompanist is available and there is no need to supply a copy of the music prior to the assessment day.

Preliminary and informal auditions are encouraged and made by arrangement with the Director of Music, Neil Matthews neil.matthews@hppc.co.uk

Sports Expectations and Pathway

Expectations

Sports scholars are expected to make an active and high quality contribution to the sporting life of the College in all three terms, both in the development of their talents and their attitude as leading sportsmen and women. Sports scholars are expected to represent the College in all school fixtures for which they have been selected.

Pathway

The programme offers a range of support that is underpinned by our six pillars of development:

- Strength and Conditioning
- Nutrition
- Practice
- Lifestyle
- Performance Analysis
- Leadership and role modelling

Alongside these pillars, scholars are offered mentor support by the Heads of Sport and Sports Performance Managers. Each scholar is allocated a full-time mentor and 'buddy' from another year group. This mentor system ensures scholars have someone to talk to or to seek advice from, whether it is sport or school related. The buddy system enables peer sharing and support.

Scholars attend a variety of presentations by guest speakers which include current and former professional sportsmen and women, sport psychologists, nutritionists, people working in professional sport and people who can assist with sports-based university guidance.

Sports Expectations and Pathway

Expectations

Sports scholars are expected to make an active and high quality contribution to the sporting life of the College in all three terms, both in the development of their talents and their attitude as leading sportsmen and women. Sports scholars are expected to represent the College in all school fixtures for which they have been selected.

Scholarship Conditions

Performing Arts Scholars at 13+ are expected to study their specialist area to GCSE level.

Scholarships at 16+ are subject to candidates achieving our A-level entry requirements. These can be found on the website or from Admissions.

Scholars will be required to attend an annual review meeting to ensure satisfactory contribution and progress. If the scholar is not making satisfactory progress, parents will be advised and the scholar set clear targets. If these are not met by the end of the summer term, the scholarship will be withdrawn.

Scholars are expected to be role models at all times and to represent the College at Open Morning events, matches, performances and productions at other similar occasions.

Any scholar who is suspended from the College will automatically lose their scholarship.

“Elite, but not elitist.”

Dominic Mott, Head of College – speaking about
Scholarships and Bursaries at Hurst

Bursaries: Widening access to Hurst

In my introduction to this booklet I noted that Hurst aims to develop elite performers, rather than perpetuate elitism within society. We have therefore devised a new approach to scholarships and bursaries that aims to widen access to Hurst, allowing exceptionally talented young people to benefit from a Hurst education irrespective of their parents' wealth or background. Our governors have recently agreed an ambitious plan to dramatically increase the total amount of funding available for bursarial support by reallocating the fee discounts that historically were associated with scholarships but which were issued irrespective of the family's financial circumstances.

This means that every single successful scholarship applicant now has the opportunity to apply for a means-tested bursary, allowing an even broader and more diverse range of pupils to access a Hurst education. Over the coming years, the positive effects of this initiative will be felt not only by those individuals who benefit from financial assistance, but also by the whole school community which will be enriched by the inclusion of these exceptional pupils. This section of the booklet explains the process for making a bursary application, as well as outlining the criteria and expectations for a successful bursarial applicant.

Bursarial candidates will largely fall into two categories, depending on their financial circumstances. Some will come from families who are willing to make a significant contribution to school fees, but who would struggle to afford the full amount – particularly after the introduction of VAT. Typically, parents will be working extremely hard and making major sacrifices to invest in their child's education, but just need some help from Hurst to make the numbers work. Others will come from families who have never even considered the possibility of independent education. These transformational bursaries of up to 110% of the fees are designed to cover everything from uniform and transport to trips and textbooks.

I appreciate that money is a sensitive issue, and many parents may feel nervous or embarrassed about discussing their finances or asking for help. As someone who benefited hugely from a very generous scholarship award when I was a child, I can empathise with this situation. But I can also speak firsthand for the incredible experience that such opportunities afford bright and talented children. Every parent wants the very best for their child. So I would encourage you to have an open conversation with our discreet and professional teams who can advise you through the whole process.

Bursary Applications

1. Contact the Admissions Department and request a bursary application pack
2. Complete and return, by email, the completed application and relevant supporting documentation to connie.baldwin@hppc.co.uk by the closing dates.
3. The application will be reviewed by an external company BAL (bursary Administration Company) who will contact you to discuss your application via Zoom call. Please note that you will be offered a maximum of two appointments and it would be appreciated if you can make every effort to attend one of these.
4. BAL will make a recommendation to the College and a decision on an offer will be made by the Head of College as to the likely level of financial support you can expect to receive.

Please ensure all applications are:

- Signed by both parents
- Separated families – we require separate application forms, signatures and supporting documents
- Siblings can go on one form
- Screenshots of applications forms or supporting documentation are not accepted

Bursary Scenarios

The following scenarios are provided as examples of how the College would assess families for means-tested fee assistance through the College's bursarial programme. The scenarios are provided as a guide only, and it is important to recognise that family finances rarely fit into a pre-defined scenario. The College's approach would be to assess each application on merit, considering both income and expenditure (i.e., the ability to meet fees from income) together with an assessment of assets and liabilities (i.e., the ability to meet fees from savings, investments and equity in property). The College's Awards policy provides significantly more detail on the College's approach, however, it is hoped that the information below is useful.

Scenario 1

David and Sarah have two children, one educated in a local state primary school and one at Hurst in the Remove without an Award. They have a combined household income of £85k and live in a house valued at £600k. They have a mortgage on the property of £300k and combined savings of £25k. Household expenditure is in line with expectations, with no anomalies.

Using the usual methodology, the College would assess David and Sarah as being able to afford a significant proportion of fees, at the current rates, from their income. A small hardship bursary, of around £1,000 per term may be justified on a temporary term-by-term basis, in the absence of an Award. However, the College would first expect the couple to utilise a significant proportion of their savings towards fees, should this be needed. As it is likely that there are no more than 12 full terms remaining, the College would expect the shortfall in affordability based on income alone could be made up by utilising some of the savings the couple hold. However, the College would invite David and Sarah to contact the College again should their circumstances change.

Fadl and Jemina have one child who attends the College in the Shell with an Award. The couple both work full-time and have a combined income of £48k. They own a property valued at £375k, with an outstanding mortgage of £225k. They have savings of £5k and an outstanding credit card balance of £2.5k. All their expenditure is in line with the benchmark averages, for a family of this size.

The College would assess Fadl and Jemina as being able to contribute approximately 30% of the College fees, meaning that the maximum amount of fee-assistance the College could provide would likely be around 70%. Both parents are working full time, and it is unlikely that they would be able to increase their mortgage much further.

Bursaries Scenarios

Scenario 3

Hugo and Annalise have one child, Ellie, who hopes to attend Hurst in the Shell. Ellie has been awarded an Academic Award. The couple have a household income of £160k and live in a house valued at £450k. They have a mortgage on the property of £150k and combined savings of £50k. The family also own a second property in Spain, worth £65k, with no mortgage.

Despite their eligibility to apply for a bursary due to Ellie's Award, the College would assess Hugo and Annalise as being able to fund full fees from income. It would also be highlighted that owning a second property is not usually compatible with receiving bursarial support, which is provided from the College's income (rather than from an endowment fund).

Scenario 4

Tom and Hannah have four secondary-aged children, two of whom attend Hurst, one with an Award. Hannah has an income of £65k, and Tom is not currently working as he has taken voluntary early retirement. They live in a house valued at £525k. They have no mortgage and savings of £15k. Tom has a credit card with an outstanding balance of £8k.

Based on Tom and Hannah's income, the College could justify a significant bursary of up to 55% of the fees for both children who attend the College. However, the College would want to closely investigate the reason for Tom's early retirement. The College's Awards policy does highlight the expectation that both parents should be maximising their earning potential, and therefore if Tom was able to work, the College would expect him to do so, prior to seeking a bursary from the College.

Scenario 5

Dave and Mark have three children, all of whom attend Hurst. They have a household income of £300k and live in a house valued at £1.5M. They have a mortgage of £550k and savings and investments of £600k. Mark also has a classic car worth £80k.

The College would find it very difficult to make any form of justification of a bursary for Dave and Mark. Whilst it is recognised that the cost of sending three children to Hurst is a very significant investment, the College would also expect parents to prioritise this investment over other items of expenditure. In this case, it would be expected that the couple utilise savings and investments (including selling the classic car, if necessary!) to supplement the fees funded by income. Additionally, the level of income is likely to allow Dave and Mark to take out additional borrowing (e.g., a mortgage) to a not unreasonable level and whilst this may not be desirable, the College would expect this to be fully explored prior to seeking a bursary.

Islay and Annabel have two children, one who is currently in Year 6 at a local state primary school and has been offered a place at the College with an Award. The family income is £58k. The family live in a house valued at £450k with an outstanding mortgage of £250k. There is no significant debt, and the household has rainy day savings of £15k.

As an Award has been offered, Islay and Annabel are eligible to apply for a bursary. The family's net assets (comprising equity in the property and modest savings) fall well within the College's acceptability criteria and would not cause any concern. The College would be able to justify means-tested financial assistance of around 30% of the College's day fees.
